

Docket No. 02-277

Re: Docket No. 02-277

I currently work freelance for television and, over the past ten years I have watched the job market dwindle as a result of media consolidation. Fewer jobs are being created as these massive corporations create less material, opting to create blanket programming instead of meeting the individual needs of a community. This may mean larger profits for an elite few, but for me and hundreds of thousands of others in the industry, it means unemployment and uncertain futures. If the FCC allows these consolidations to continue, it will be plainly obvious for whom the FCC actually works, and it sure as hell isn't the American public.

regards,
Aaron Neathery